HISTORY

Documents from the National Library of Scotland have firmly established Fraserburgh Golf Club as being founded on 14th April 1777.

According to records at The British Golf Museum, St Andrews: Fraserburgh Golf Club is the 7th Oldest Club in the World and 5th oldest club in Scotland and the Oldest Club North of The Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St Andrews.

James Braid redesigned the course in 1922 much of his design remains today.

This natural links course on the North East coast of Scotland has a variety of different types of holes making a very interesting and enjoyable game of golf. The panoramic views over the course are splendid with the 3rd tee offering a spectacular vista of sand, sea, links and the Buchan landscape.

The course was redesigned in 1922 by the five times British open champion and famous golf course designer James Braid and much of his design remains today.
